

TO INSTALL DR. SANFORD

As President of Clark College—Prominent Educators Are Gathered at Worcester.

(Herald Special.)

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 31.—Official delegates representing various seats of learning throughout the country are arriving here to attend the inauguration tomorrow of Dr. Edmund C. Sanford as president of Clark College. Among the prominent educators who will attend the ceremony are President Ira Remsen of Johns Hopkins University, President Lancaster of Olivet College, Professor Richey of Purdue University, President Hill of the University of Missouri, Professor E. B. Delabarre of Brown University, President Reed of Dickinson College, President Needham of George Washington University, President Lowell of Harvard University, Chancellor McCracken of New York University, Professor Titchener of Cornell University, President Atkinson of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, and President Seelye of Smith College.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

Anderson County Medical Society Held Interesting Meeting.

The Anderson County Medical Association was in session here the latter part of last week, and after finishing the business of the session and electing officers for the coming year, adjourned. The following gentlemen were elected:

Dr. Wm. H. Gohlman, president.
Dr. El Converse, secretary, re-elected.

Dr. J. H. Paxton of Elkhart, delegate to state convention. The state association meets this year in Dallas.

NO. 5 WAS DERAILED.

Passenger Train Went Into Open Switch Near New Waverly.

Saturday night passenger train No. 5 went into an open switch about two and one-half miles south of New Waverly, on the I. & G. N., but fortunately the train was moving slowly, and no one was injured. The locomotive and two or three cars left the rails, and the track was pretty badly torn up, and some damage was done to the cars.

Lights Were Out.

Through some mishap the I. & G. N. electric light plant failed last night, and the lights were out for about two hours, making it awkward about the depot and about the railroad property generally. Tallow candles, oil lamps, etc., had to be resorted to.

Wallace Spalding.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. P. W. Walker, on North Jackson street, Mr. Frank Spalding of Waxahachie and Miss Edna Wallace were united in marriage. Rev. L. D. Anderson of the Christian church officiating. The couple were attended by Mr. John Spalding, a brother of the groom, and Miss Edna Wright of this city. The bride is a Palestine woman, but for the past year or more has made her home in Waxahachie with another sister. She is a most lovable young woman, and has a great host of friends here, who extend best wishes to her. Mr. Spalding is connected with the office of the county clerk of Ellis county, and is a splendid man. The happy couple left yesterday for their home in Waxahachie.

FOR POOL CHAMPIONSHIP

Thomas Heuston and Jerome Keough Play For the World's Championship in New York.

(Herald Special.)

New York, Jan. 31.—Two of the most skillful players of 15-ball pool in the world begin a world's championship tonight in the New York Theatre concert hall. They are Thomas Heuston, the present champion, and Jerome Keough of Rochester, who formerly held the title. The match requires the winner to pocket 600 balls, and will last three nights, 200 balls being played each night.

It is a genuine championship contest. Heuston having been formally challenged by Keough, while the New York Roomkeepers' Association has guaranteed a purse of $1,000. It is the first championship contest at pool to take place in New York in several years. Both men have been in the city for several weeks, and are in good condition.

RETTY BUT COSTLY EFFECT

Use of Veiling Lace with Chiffon Is Good One, Though by No Means Economical.

The idea brought out last year of veiling lace with chiffon has come back again with renewed vigor. It was brought about by the necessity of softening the metal tissues which were used against the neck and arms last season; it spread to lace. It is an absurd method on the face of it, yet it has quite a good many followers, especially among the high-priced designers.

It is usually done with black chiffon, and the claim is that this smoky veil gives charm to the design of the lace beneath it. Whatever the points in its favor or disfavor, it is a prevalent fashion. On afternoon frocks and smart boned blouses for one piece suits the small yokes and lower sleeves are veiled with the finest of black chiffon.

It is always better when doing this to add a lining under the lace of silver or gold net. This gives brilliancy to the black chiffon and keeps it from deadening the gown.

It is an expensive fad to use four draperies for one effect, but the designer of to-day has no thought of expense.

WEAR SEMI-PRECIOUS STONES

Leaders of Fashion Appear in Costumes That Match These Accessories.

For those who cannot afford handsome jewelry in precious stones and for those also who want a change from the conventional, there are lovely effects to be worked out in such semi-precious stones as lapis lazuli, light emeralds or amethysts. Costumes matched in such accessory are smartly finished. For instance, one young woman is wearing on the little finger of her right hand a huge silver ring of Greek design, embedded with a very dark cabochon lapis lazuli. It is used with a navy blue serge Russian blouse, the black satin belt held at the front by two antique silver buckles. Another instance of original and beautiful jewelry is carried out in the pale emeralds, which are lovely in opaque light green. The owner wears them as rings, five stones in a row set low in Roman gold, and there is a bar pin to match with the stones cut round and set in full relief. With a black gown, embroidered at yoke in green and gold, these trinkets are stunning. Amethysts are lovely with suits or gowns that shade into that color. The golden topaz has come into great favor.—Vogue.

WIDE CHOICE IS OFFERED

In Yokes One May Have as Many Styles as Varying Fancy Dictates.

Sleeves are not the only parts of dress that are being strongly featured.

Yokes are about as varied, and if it is no uncommon thing for a single blouse or waist of apparent simplicity to comprise in its construction as many as three or four yokes. A smooth-fitting bodice may be cut low, two inches below the bust, in fact, and built up again with a plain section of contrasting material elaborately embroidered, and above all these comes the yoke proper, of net or allover lace. That in turn, may be supplemented with a small Dutch or circular yoke, with perhaps a stock of still another lace. And with so many pieces and so many materials there is no suggestion of a lack of continuity. The eye takes in the ensemble, and is not arrested by any one patch or spot, if the effect is successful. It goes without saying that cleverness is required to produce this ensemble effect that is so delightful and so emphatically a point in present fashions.

Lace Pieces.

Small lace pieces of one kind and another have a place this season among all dress trimmings. The smallest piece may enhance a new collar, the largest may build the foundation of a gown, but everything which can be used is put into service. If you have coarse pieces such as berthas, ready-made yokes, or cuffs and collar sets, you may, if you care for something novel, have them dyed to match a cloth suit. It is now possible to use in this way many old pieces which are yellowed with age. Again, if laces are transparent, they may be placed over silver cloth, where the most can be obtained from the home-made trimmings with the glitter of tinsel beneath.

Back to the Curves.

Couturiers are following closer the lines of the figure than at the beginning of the season. That is to say that now since Parisians have returned from the country and invested in new corsets, their figures are somewhat more reasonable. The corsetiers have decided that they have been murdering the feminine figure long enough, making only lines and angles where curves ought to be. However, things have not yet adjusted themselves, and the normal figure will not be with us until next spring.

Ball Fringe in Style.

The woman who is in doubt as to how to edge her sleeves or tunic or sash drapery can choose narrow ball fringe. It is quite fashionable. It is in all the metals and many of the crystals. It is sold by the yard and has a tiny braid finish. It is easy to adjust and sew.

Bald Heads.

Thomas, five years old, came face to face the other day with an uncle he had never seen before, and noticed that this uncle had a bald head surrounded by a fringe of hair—such a head as the cartoonists used to draw of David B. Hill. This fact, added to the uncle's extreme height and thinness, excited Tommy's comment.

"Say, mamma," he said, turning to his mother, "my new uncle grew up so fast his hair didn't have time to reach the top of his head!"

JAMES L. DAVENPORT, NEW COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS.

Mr. Davenport held the position of first deputy commissioner of pensions for many years before his elevation to the commissionership and is credited with knowing more about the operation of the pension bureau than any other man alive. He has announced that he will apply the shears to much of the red tape that has hampered the department ever since it came into existence. This ought to meet with favor from thousands of veterans who have seen their claims held up from year to year because of the interminable processes of the government. His reforms will be mostly in the conduct of the pension office.

Lavender Suit to Be Tried.

(Herald Special.)

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Some highly sensational testimony is expected in the suit brought by Mrs. Mary Lavender against the Rev. Edward B. Crawford, pastor of the Woodlawn Methodist Episcopal church, which was called for trial in Judge Carpenter's court today. Mrs. Lavender brought suit for $50,000 against Dr. Crawford soon after he had made public what he termed a "confession" of improper conduct with the Rev. John D. Leek, former pastor of the Woodlawn church, which Dr. Crawford declared Mrs. Lavender had made to him.
